US BUREAU TO TAKE

EMPLOYMENT SURVEY HERE

Representatives of the Bureau of Economic Analysis of the Census Bureau will conduct a survey of employment in this area during the week of July 19-22. Arthur G. Dukakis, Director of the Bureau's Regional Office in Boston, has announced that the survey is conducted for the Department of Labor in a specially designed sample of approximately 71,000 households throughout the United States. Eminent and unemployment statistics based on results of this survey are used to provide a composite measure of the economic condition of the Nation.

For example, in May, the survey indicated that of the 110.7 million men and women in the civilian labor force, 100.1 million were employed. The Nation's unemployment rate was 9.5%, about the same as the 9.4% in April.

Information supplied by individuals participating in the survey is strictly confidential by law and the results are used only for statistical totals.

During the process, these plots will be used to check the rate of mortality in future years.

The Cascade foresters believe the continued spruce budworm infestation makes reforestation a possible annual project for immediate future.

S.A.D. 44 Students Improve Mastery of Math in 1981-82

At the end of the 1980-81 school year, the Board of Directors, upon learning that there was significant improvement in mathematics mastery in the elementary schools of S.A.D. 44 during the previous school year, set the improvement of student achievement in mathematics as one of its goals for the 1981-82 school year. As a result of the increased emphasis on mathematics instruction during the 1981-82 school year, there was marked improvement at every elementary grade level, with 109 more students in the district achieving mastery in math during 1981-82 than 1980-81. The accompanying chart summarizes the district-wide improvement in mathematics mastery.

In reviewing these findings with the Board of Directors, Dr. Wayne F. Gersen, Superintendent of Schools, indicated that he believed this improvement occurred because teachers had a clearer understanding of the mathematics curriculum as a result of the efforts of the mathematics committee, and because the teachers increased the amount of time spent on mathematics instruction, making it a priority in their lesson planning. He also indicated that the improvement among students in grades three through six was especially heartening, because the majority of students at those grade levels had not satisfactorily mastered their mathematics at the conclusion of the previous school year.

The Superintendent indicated that while Board members and administrators can emphasize skill areas, the ultimate credit for this improvement on the part of students in S.A.D. 44 rests with the teachers in the district who worked hard on mathematics skills during the past year.

In concluding, Dr. Gersen stated that the emphasis on the basic skills of reading, language arts, and mathematics, will continue, with the aim of achieving at least 80% mastery at each grade level in mathematics in the year ahead.

Percentage of students achieving mastery in mathematics:

Mollycodd Day

Bethel's 1982 Mollycodd Day began with bicycle races for area youth at nine o'clock. The course was shorter than in years past with contestants starting at the Casco Bank, going up Main to Spring, in Spring to Mason Street, returning to Main via Chapman Street, and finishing at the Cole Block.

Following the bicycle races, the annual parade led by the Mundt Allen Post Color Guard, and the East Butterfield Militia of Buckfield, traversed up Main Street, around the Common and down Church Street to the Gould Academy athletic field. The crowd viewing the parade appeared to be somewhat smaller than in prior years, possibly due to the 90°+ temperature and high humidity.

Featured on the Common were many of the old standby craft booths and concessions that have graced the event for several years, some since its inception as the "Bethel Bazaar" in 1949. Also this year, the "Lunar Bounce" returned, as well as pony rides, "dunking" tank, and an exhibit of antique gasoline engines.

The Bethel Rotary Club sponsored its yearly chicken barbecue dinner and auction during the afternoon.

A mid-afternoon shower dampened the festivities somewhat but

This is the time of year when we are all outside more. It is also the time of year when the insects are out in full swing. An allergic reaction can occur to a bee sting or wasp sting even if you have never been allergic to anything before. Watch for the signs, immediate swelling, itching over the whole body, hives, and at the advanced stages, difficulty breathing. If you notice more than the usual reaction to a sting, get to a doctor to get checked. They can prescribe medicine to counteract the reaction, if necessary.

Remember if you do need the ambulance, call 1-800-452-7433. Remember to tell your exact location and the nature of the illness or injury.

UMO-PRODUCED FILM WARNS OF LOGGING INJURIES AND CHAIN SAW ACCIDENTS

Escalating numbers of logging-related injuries and chain saw accidents have resulted in an added emphasis by the University of Maine at Orono's Cooperative Extension Service to warn Maine people about the dangers involved in woods-related occupations. According to Bill Litley, CES safety specialist, one out of every three people involved in the logging industry in Maine has an occupationally related injury each year and 50% of them are disabling. One of the projects initiated by CES to address the problem is a 20-minute film entitled "Will I See the Springtime Again?" produced by UMO radio-TV specialist Henry Newison which examines the hazards of wood cutting and chain saw use and shows how drastically accidents can affect people's lives. Last year, according to National Safety Council figures, more than 50,000 chain saw accidents occurred in the U. S.

The Week in Washington

by Sen. George J. Mitchell

The Rights of the Handicapped

Following years of struggle by handicapped Americans, Congress in 1973 enacted legislation to insure and protect the rights of the handicapped, by prohibiting discrimination against them, by requiring that all public buildings be made accessible to them, and by insuring equal education opportunity for handicapped children.

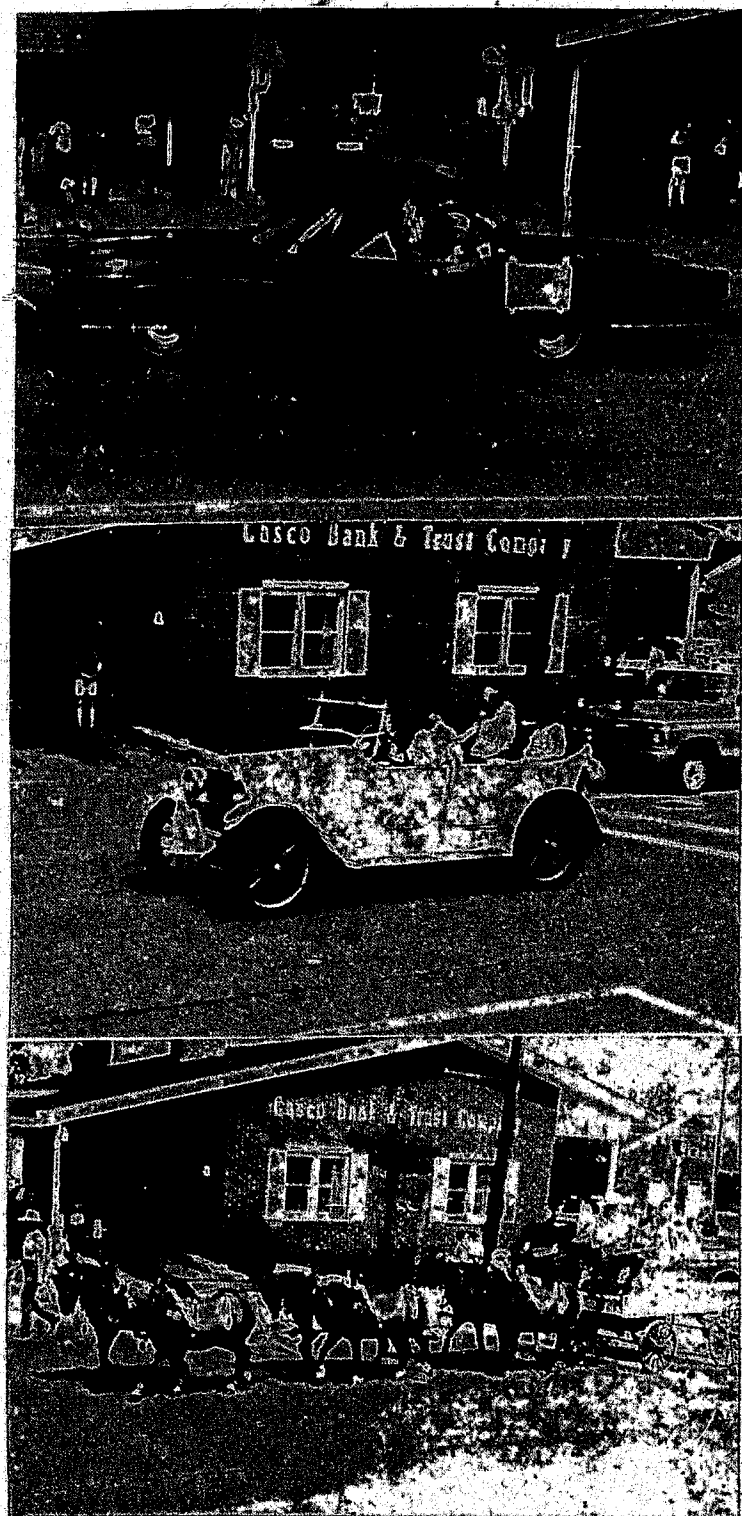

A few years later, Congress passed the Education for All Handicapped Children Act, which requires that handicapped children receive equal access to public education.

These two laws were something of a milestone for handicapped Americans. They guaranteed the protection of their civil rights.

Now, those safeguards are being questioned.

Last year, a special Administration task force was designated to examine the two laws and the regulations governing them. The task force, headed by Vice President George Bush, and the Department of Justice, is reportedly considering a series of changes to the Section 504 regulations of the Rehabilitation Act of 1973, that would seriously erode the hard-won civil rights of handicapped citizens.

In my view these changes are wrong and they are unnecessary. Disabled Americans have fought very long and hard for their rights as citizens, with all the privileges and responsibilities that accompany those rights. Our nation prides itself as a champion of human rights in the world. Throughout our history, by constitutional amendment and by statute, the United States has added additional safeguards to insure equality for all people, regardless of race, sex, or any other factor which might limit a person's full acceptance and participation in society.

U. OF M. ORONO NAMES ACTING VICE PRESIDENT FOR RESEARCH & PUBLIC SERVICE

A former acting president of three higher education institutions in Maine has been named acting vice president for research and public service at the University of Maine at Orono. Dr. Kenneth W. Allen was named to the UMO post by President Paul H. Silverman to replace Dr. Frederick Hutchinson, who is leaving to assume a position with the Agency for International Development in Washington, D. C. Dr. Allen formerly served as acting president at the University of Maine at Augusta, the University of Southern Maine and UMO.

Last Saturday, thousands of Maine people participated in a rally in Portland, protesting any proposed changes that might weaken the rights of handicapped Americans. They carried with them petitions bearing the names of thousands more people who support their cause. Their message, and the message of other disabled Americans across the country, is being carried to Washington.

They have faced months of uncertainty, unsure whether or not the rights they had struggled so hard to win, would be pulled out from under them.

I intend to fight those changes in Congress. The civil rights of the handicapped must be protected. Their rights affect not only the disabled, but every American who believes in giving all people an equal opportunity to fulfill his or her potential as a fully participating member in this society.

I will closely monitor the task force's work and will oppose any recommendations it makes that weaken the rights of handicapped citizens. The years of neglect are over. We must not turn the clock back.

Walking With Jesus Christ

A million things to write about—but only one thing to say: "Jesus is Lord." The Bible says so and the believer knows it.

"Everyone who believes that Jesus the Christ is born of God, and everyone who loves the father loves his child as well. This is how we know that we love the children of God: by loving God and carrying out his commands. This is love for God: to obey his commands. And, his commands are not burdensome, for everyone born of God has overcome the world. This is the victory that has overcome the world, even our faith. Who is it that overcomes the world? Only the one who believes that Jesus is the Son of God." I John 5:1-5.

And what is the Christians job? There's a song — "Go tell it on the mountain—that Jesus Christ is Lord." Ephesians 5:1—"Be imitators of God, as dearly beloved children and live a life of love, just as Christ loved us and gave himself up for us as a fragrant offering and sacrifice to God." "You were once darkness, but now you are light in the Lord."

We're told in 2 Timothy 3: "But mark this: There will be terrible times in the last days. People will be lovers of themselves, lovers of money, boastful, proud, abusive, disobedient to their parents—" and much more.

And what are we to do? 2 Timothy 4:—"In the presence of God and of Jesus Christ, who will judge the living and the dead, and in view of his appearing and his kingdom, I give you this charge. Preach the Word; be prepared in season and out of season; correct, rebuke and encourage with great patience and careful instruction."

Now we're not all preachers—however each and every Christian has gifts given to him by the Holy Spirit and we are expected to use them in the service of our Lord Jesus—we're to pray and exercise our position in Christ—we're in heavenly places—in the world but not of it!

If we don't know what to do other than pray—do as Paul did when on the road to Damascus—Acts 22:10 — "What shall I do, Lord?" God will let you know — "to the extent of our commitment." If you're not committed to Christ? Questions!

A child of God—studies God's Word—applies the truths to himself — grows outwardly and inwardly—becoming more and more like Christ.

SEN. WILLIAM COHEN

From Washington

The news coming out of Washington this year talks of budget compromises, deficit projects, and tax rates. We seem to be awash in economic statistics to the exclusion of everything else.

The term "farmland conversion" has not been tossed around in the headlines, nor have there been network television exposes on the subject. But the fact remains that rural America is facing a crisis - agricultural land is rapidly and thoughtlessly being lost through conversion to other uses such as shopping centers, housing complexes, and other industrial development purposes.

It is a situation which deserves more attention than it is getting.

The facts tell the story: throughout the country, it is estimated that 220 acres of farmland per hour are being converted to other uses, which translates to nearly two million acres per year. At this alarming rate, our farmers may be increasingly hard-pressed to meet world demand for domestic agricultural products, which is expected to dramatically escalate in the year ahead.

In addition to the national significance of this problem, we in Maine have ample reason to be concerned as well. Maine is primarily a rural state, with over 1.7 million acres of farmland. But 44,000 of those acres - or 2.2% of Maine's arable land - have been lost through conversion to other uses in the past years. Elsewhere in New England, Vermont lost the most farmland - some 198,000 acres, or 9.2% of its arable base. Only Rhode Island has increased its farm acreage, gaining 19,000 acres, an increase of 24%. Rhode Island joins Idaho and New Mexico in being the only three states in the country to experience an increase, rather than a decrease, in agricultural acreage.

This situation warrants a thorough review by Congress and the Administration. Too often, federal policymakers fail to think carefully about the long-term effects of this land loss on our ability to grow adequate supplies of produce both for our own requirements and for world food markets. And by contributing to the world food supply through our agricultural exports, we also contribute significantly to the reduction of the U.S. balance-of-payments deficit.

What can be done about the problem? The federal government can support the preservation of farmland by offering educational, technical, and financial assistance to interested local governments. Conditioning federal policies have frequently contributed to the conversion of farmland. A provision of the 1982 Farm Bill, may, however, require all federal agencies to review and revise, if possible, any programs that may lead to farmland conversion.

Although zoning has traditionally been used to preserve land, the method often proves too restrictive, resulting in an unfair reduction of the value of a farmer's land. I feel it is important that we continue to pursue other alternatives in our attempt to seek the proper balance between urban development and agricultural land use and preservation.

I have urged Secretary of Agriculture John Block to start a

PROHIBITION OF BLACK DUCK SHOOTING IN FALL '82 SEASON IS RECOMMENDATION

Black duck populations have suffered such a serious decline that wildlife experts and organizations are recommending that the shooting of black ducks be prohibited in Maine during this fall's waterfowl hunting season.

Inland Fisheries and Wildlife Commissioner Glenn H. Mannel has said that he has received a recommendation to close the season on black ducks for a period of three years in an attempt to reverse this steady decline.

Making the recommendation to close the season is Howard "Skip" Spencer, Migratory Bird Research Leader. He was joined in the recommendation by the Department of Inland Fisheries and Wildlife's Warden and Wildlife Divisions, the Maine Chapter of the Wildlife Society, and the Maine Waterfowl Advisory Council.

Spencer says the recommendations are based on the "very precarious status of black duck populations, particularly in Maine."

Spencer cites disturbing survey data which indicates the loss of more than three-fourths of black duck production during the period of 1956 to 1965.

Also of great concern, according to Spencer, is the continuing decline in annual harvest from a 1969-72 average of 37,000 black ducks to the 1978-81 average of 19,000. He points out that the reduced harvest has occurred despite the fact that hunting pressure has remained essentially constant at approximately 100,000 hunter days per season.

The annual winter inventory of waterfowl along the Maine coast each January also indicates a decline, from 31,000 black ducks in 1974-75 to the 1977-81 average of 12,000. The continental wintering black duck populations have declined from 720,000 in 1955 to 310,000 in 1981.

While hunting pressure accounts for some of the losses, Spencer says biologists recognize that a number of other factors no doubt contribute to the decline. These include habitat loss and degradation due to man's activities. However, hunting pressure is the one factor that can most readily be controlled and evaluated as to its effect on populations.

Analysis of leg band recoveries indicates that fewer than 45% of black ducks banded as young survive to reach breeding age - not enough to maintain the population. The analysis also shows that 65% of Maine-raised black ducks have comprehensive study of this problem in Maine and across the country. Our agricultural policies must be examined not only for their present application, but for their potential future impact.

President Eisenhower once said that "farming looks mighty easy when your plow is a pencil and when you're a thousand miles from the cornfield." He is right - Washington is often too remote and removed from the problems of the average farmer. For the 18,000 Mainers and hundreds of thousands of others nationwide who make their living on farms, the government needs to avoid this crisis and ensure that future generations will be able to share our current abundance of agricultural produce.

He concludes: "The black duck is of particular importance to Maine waterfowlers as the choicest of game ducks. Maine's lead in protecting this valuable resource would have an effect on the attitudes and actions of other Atlantic Flyway Council states and provinces. It should encourage them to follow our suit."

COUNTY REPUBLICAN COMM. MET JULY 13, NORWAY LAKE

The Oxford County Republican Committee met on Tuesday, July 13, at the cottage of Roland and Nancy Sutton on Norway Lake.

Following a pot-luck supper, the meeting was chaired by Chairman Nancy Sutton.

Barbara Hammond, representative for gubernatorial candidate Charles Cragin, spoke about the campaign and announced that the Oxford County debate between the candidates (one of 16 proposed by Cragin) is scheduled for the week of Sept. 12.

The following candidates running for office in Oxford County were introduced and presented reports on the status of their campaigns: Mickey Noble, Otisfield, Senate District 5; Norman Ferguson, Jr., Hanover, Senate District 16; Rep. Lawrence Kiegan, Fryeburg, House District 64; Roger Roderick, Oxford, House District 66; Rep. Sue Bell, Paris, House District 65. Senator Roland Sutton spoke on behalf of the Noble campaign indicating that a victory in Senate District 5 may prove essential to Republicans in maintaining control of the Senate.

Greg Bacon, Executive Director of the State Committee was introduced by Mrs. Sutton. Mr. Bacon spoke briefly regarding the relationship between the State and County Committees.

Minutes of the May committee meeting were read by Secretary Gary Page and approved. Finance Chairman Norman Ferguson, Sr., commented on the financial status of the Committee and on the fund raising quotas for the coming year.

The following sub-committees were announced by Mrs. Sutton: Programs - Stanley Howe, Bethel; Gordon Gilles, Bethel; Public Relations - Anna Henderson, Sumner; Barbara Brown, Bethel; Gary Page, Sumner. Special Events - Henry Jackson, Oxford; Barbara Hammond, Fryeburg; Oxford Co. Fair, Alfred Wallen, Oxford.

The following special events were announced: July 18, Fund raiser for Charles Cragin at the home of Bruce Chalmers in Bridgton; Aug. 17, Fund raiser for Charles Cragin at McKean's Restaurant in Bethel; Aug. 18, Fund raiser for Legislative candidates Noble, Bell and Roderick; Aug. 20, Henry Kissinger will be in Portland for a dinner and reception; Oct. 15, Candidates might and supper in Oxford.

It was voted to form a sub-committee to survey the candidates within Oxford County and make recommendations for allocating County Committee funds to their campaigns. The following individuals were appointed: Don Buzzell, Fryeburg; Nancy Sutton, Paris; Norman Ferguson, Sr., Hanover; Barbara Brown, Bethel.

Chairwoman Sutton announced that the next meeting will be held on Tuesday, Aug. 10, at 7:30 p.m., at the South Paris Fire Hall.

vested throughout the Atlantic Flyway are killed in Maine. According to Spencer, this indicates that protecting black ducks in Maine should benefit the Maine breeding population regardless of what action other states or provinces may take to protect the black duck.

He also points out that Maine-produced birds contribute only a small proportion of the black duck harvest in more southern states because the Maine birds become mixed with large numbers of black ducks from other breeding areas.

Mannel says his department "pledges every effort to monitor and evaluate the population status and to provide black duck hunting when it is biologically prudent to do so."

He concludes: "The black duck is of particular importance to Maine waterfowlers as the choicest of game ducks. Maine's lead in protecting this valuable resource would have an effect on the attitudes and actions of other Atlantic Flyway Council states and provinces. It should encourage them to follow our suit."

North Paris

— Evaline B. Vatcher, Corres. —

What a splendid week we have had. The weather was sizzling and breezes were lacking, but we survived or tried to. Joe Vatcher and I went to Massachusetts on Tuesday after my doctor's appointment and we were very warm, so I have decided that North Paris is good enough for me in this kind of weather, for I can at least find a bit of shade. I must be chicken.

Mr. and Mrs. Joe Kalinowski went to their home in Portland, Conn., on July 7, and they returned to their Hilltop home here on July 14 as the city was stifling. There is always a cool breeze for them here. Stanley Ekeude drove Joe's truck up with a load of brick and stayed several days.

The supper committee has decided to serve strawberry shortcake for the dessert at the supper July 24, from 5 to 6 p. m. We will have a few pies on hand in case some one doesn't care for the shortcake.

The Reidy's are at their trailer for several weeks, and will have a well dug, driven or made, as it's no fun to carry every drop of water. Mrs. Reidy's parents and several of their children are with them and they just love the country, even in hot weather, as swimming is handy.

The big black bear that ran into the side of Charlie Coffin's truck was taken to Harlan Abbott's to be weighed, and a large crowd was there to see it. Must be good eating as it weighed only 225 pounds, but Joe Vatcher refused a hunk of steak. I would have eaten some as I have before now.

Clyde Knights has been doing some plumbing for Doris Lawrence, hot and cold water put into the kitchen and a shower stall and hot water heater installed. Arnold Coffin had an air conditioner installed Saturday to try to beat the heat.

Mr. and Mrs. Everett White and daughter, Merrimac, Mass., came to the home of her mother, to pick up their two boys, who have been here for two weeks. The daughter decided not to stay and Joe and Muriel Gilbert visited their daughter, Jean Collet and family at Windham on Sunday. Louisa Croteau visited the Gilberts one day last week.

Joe and Leah Deegan are pleased to announce the marriage of their daughter, Kathy, to Henry (Hank) Lessard from Massachusetts. They were married last week at the chapel on Hickam Air Force Base where Kathy is stationed. Hank, in the Navy, is stationed on a nearby base. Fred Westerlund, Saugus, Mass., called on Mr. and Mrs. Joe Vatcher and Mrs. Rhoda Vatcher. Joe used to be Fred's supervisor.

Dick Bean, Harlan Abbott and friends enjoyed a moon light ride on the River Queen Saturday evening.

Graydon Chamberlain, Lisa and Owen, have returned from Louisiana and are with his mother, as Graydon had a bad heart attack and is unable to work at present.

Hope Eva Yates is gaining every day.

Joe and Evaline Vatcher called on the Norman Abbott's, Mexico, Sunday evening.

Isn't it lovely to live in the country and have ones own vegetables and berries fresh every day?

Harlan Abbott moved his late father's tools home Sunday. Joe Vatcher helped him.

Greenwood City

— Mrs. Colista Morgan, Corres. —

The morning dawned hot and the air heavy, the promise of a real July day. The sun broke through the haze and the mountain ridges thrust up like dark islands in a misty sea. Clouds floated in the sky and shadows trailed across the fog fields below.

Things that had to be done I completed by one o'clock. Instead of wandering over rolling land I took my boat and set out for the river where I knew it would be cool.

At the mouth of the river I was greeted by the Cedar Waxwing dressed in a robe delicate and silky in texture, shades of blending beauty; velvety black brightening into fawn, melting browns, pale blue-gray and slate, with trimmings of white and golden yellow.

The little red appendages on the wing quills, found only on this bird gives it distinction peculiarly its own. Its crest lying down loose upon its head signifying ease and comfort; in fear it's flat, in surprise it becomes erect as it was at this time. They are very glutinous birds, eating until they are gorged to their beaks.

This is the only place that I see them, now. They used to come to the elms when we had them near the house.

They followed me as I made my way up the river.

Where the breeze hit, it bent and lifted the grasses in rhythmic waves like the waves of the ocean, a green sea breaking around the roots of the forest.

I fastened my boat and stepped ashore. Exploring a short distance, my footfalls were as silent as moonlight, cushioned by a carpet of moss.

I sat on an uprooted tree trunk, surrounded by silence, breathing in pure, balsam-scented air. I was on the edge of a wilderness and little things of interest were all around me. Lichen clad trunks were there, molded leaves, new soil being made, ferns, and flowers.

The sun struck here and there, making moving shadows across me and the ground.

A mole ran out from the grass at my feet and scurried blindly. He ran first one way then another. The grass shook and trembled, as he made his way through it, then fell again into his indolent motion.

As I made my way back toward the boat, the air was still heavy but the gentle breeze was refreshing.

At the river's edge I waded in to get cool. The water was clear, so I could see the golden grains of sand and the shimmering pebbles. How nice the water was!

A couple of hours had passed so I climbed into the boat, unfastened it and slowly went down stream. It was very still. There came the smell of mint leaves. A butterfly fluttered past my cheek, brushing lightly.

The sparkle of the water lit my way.

A few red wing black birds were clustering atop grasses. They flung themselves, with gurgling noises into the air, as I passed.

A small limber birch waved me on.

Exclamation-points, with strap-leaves and sausage-like heads guided me out of the river, and past the lovely lilies, queens of ponds, their fragrant white flowers dazzling against the dark water.

The sun was lower in the sky now, staining the air with a pale yellow and rose that would deepen as it set beyond the soft green of the horizon. We saw it from the lawn later as sunset and night were separated by a short twilight.

"The leaves sigh and murmur—the brook ambles on. The dusk whispers softly as daylight is gone. Fireflies lit in gladness, in evening's warm sky And hermits hold so firmly to lovely July."

—Garnett Ann Schultz

Not much to write about except the weather; everyone says that, hot!

MOTORCYCLISTS REMINDED OF ONE PASSENGER LAW

Motorcycle operators are reminded that there can be no more than two people riding on a motorcycle.

"Troopers enforcing the law are concerned that motorcycle operators seem not to be aware of the passenger riding requirements pertaining to motorcycles," said Col. Allan H. Weeks, chief of the Maine State Police.

Weeks said troopers are having to stop motorcycles that carry besides the operator, two passengers, with one of the passengers being a baby or young child.

Maine law, (Title 26, sec. 900) states: "...a passenger may ride upon the permanent regular seat if designed for two persons, or upon another seat firmly attached to the rear or side of the operator and provided with foot rests or in a sidecar attached to the motorcycle..."

FROM THE TOWN OFFICE

three early candidates for Constable/Special Police Officer. Norm Clanton was appointed Constable while others interviewed as well as applications received more recently will be interviewed by the Board at a later meeting.

In similar action, the Board appointed Samuel Timberlake and David Head to the Budget Committee for three year terms returning that committee to full twelve member strength. The Board signed a Municipal Quilt Claim Deed for a property owner for full payment of taxes on a matured lien.

Approval was made of the B.E.A.R.S. request for purchase of three Motorola Minator pagers for the purchase price of $820 as authorized by Town Meeting vote and concurred with by the Radio Study Committee. These pagers will be used to outfit the new members of the B. E. A. R. S. The Board signed a certificate to the Maine Department of Transportation stating that Local Road Assistance Program Funds will be used on public roads. Paid in quarterly installments of $7,830 for fiscal year 1983, these funds will be used to offset the added costs to the taxpayers of maintaining the 12 miles of formerly State roads turned over to the Town on July 1, 1982.

Dana Douglass, chairman of the Planning Board, discussed progress on cable television. A draft ordinance was presented to the Board together with a format for conducting initial discussions with prospective cable TV vendors. The Selectmen requested that the Planning Board continue the process of opening interviews with potential companies and directed the Manager to continue with legal review of the draft ordinance.

Bid specifications for stockpiling winter sand for the Town and selling it to local contractors was discussed at length among the Board and interested citizens. After defeating a motion that the Town sell winter sand to local contractors in the manner followed in the past, the Board moved to direct the Town Manager to proceed with the bid process in an effort to pin down possible cost savings for taxpayers.

The 1982 Sewer Department budget was approved by the Selectmen, acting as Sewer Department trustees at $75,460, which is $3,000 less than 1981's operating budget. Characterized as a hard-nosed budget by the Manager, sewer expenditures have been cut to the bone. Sewer revenues are anticipated to be $75,519, hence a balanced budget and no rate increase is called for this year. This should not obscure the fact that major problem areas, each with a potential price tag attached, remain to be solved in the future. They are payment of the principal (less interest) for the cost of the sewer plant installation in 1973 and the high costs of plant operation resulting from extra water introduced into the system (which must then be treated as sewerage) from cracked and broken sewer pipes and basement pump drainage. These items will be examined in a future column. Meanwhile, posting of this quarter's sewer bills, which were delayed pending budget approval, are being processed for mailing next week.

The long agenda forced postponement of consideration of energy projects for the Cole Block, review of the third draft of a proposed Traffic Ordinance and consideration of digging a new trench along the landfill's western edge in late summer or fall. These items will be examined when the Board of Selectmen meet on Monday evening, July 26, at 7 o'clock in the Town Office meeting room.

Washington Watch

by Olympia J. Sewe
Member of Congress
2nd District, Maine

On June 30, opponents of the ratification of the Equal Rights Amendment signed the "death" of the amendment with lavish celebrations in Washington.

To these individuals, the failure of a necessary number of states to ratify the amendment by the June 30 deadline was seen as a fatal blow to the amendment's future. It may have been wishful thinking, for last week I joined with about 250 members of the House and Senate in co-sponsoring a re-introduction of the ERA in Congress.

As I told my colleagues in an address on the House floor, equality under the law for all Americans is not an idea that can be swept away by the passage of a deadline or the political whims of a state legislature. Instead, it is an idea whose time has come, an irresistible force which will beat down any obstacle in its path through the power of truth in its message.

ERA transcends the personalities and politics of the women's movement. It goes beyond the debate in the states which saw the issue transformed into a political football.

The reason? Simply put, basic inequalities still exist in our society that should be an embarrassment to a nation which is a beacon of social progress for the rest of the world. Women in the workplace make about 65 cents for every dollar a man makes. Income figures show that a man with an eighth-grade education makes as much as a woman with a college degree.

Three out of four Americans living in poverty are women, as are 90% of those receiving Social Security minimum benefits. The statistics go on and on.

It has been more than 60 years since Congress first considered an equal rights amendment. In the logic of some, this time lapse is an indictment of the worth of the amendment. But the earlier triumphs of Susan B. Anthony and Dr. Martin Luther King were not won overnight or without considerable struggle and pain, and few will argue that women's suffrage or civil rights were unworthy causes. ERA lives again, for its underlying truth cannot die.

Potato Insurance: Last week I wrote Agriculture Secretary John Block to seek inclusion of Maine's potato crop for coverage under the Federal Crop Insurance Program for 1983.

Disaster-insurance coverage has been extended to Maine oat, wheat, barley and corn farmers. It seems logical, therefore, that potatoes should receive similar coverage, since Maine leads the Northeast in potato production and ranks third in the nation. The flooding in northern Maine last August took a tremendous toll on farmers, forcing them to shoulder the damages without reimbursement.

Steaming in Madawaska: Fraser Inc.'s paper operations seemed to have developed a bold plan for energy conservation when the company proposed both to heat and to power paper-drying machines in its Madawaska plant with steam produced across the border in its Edmundston, N.B. plant.

The move was designed to save about 400,000 barrels of oil yearly

MAINE GAME WARDENS
ISSUED NEW UNIFORMS

After nearly a half-century of service, "Maine warden blue" is being retired from the Maine Warden Service uniform.

In late July, wardens will begin wearing a modern dacron polyester uniform in forest green, according to Fish and Wildlife Commissioner Glenn Manuel.

Adoption of the new uniform by the Warden Service came after more than a year of field testing and researching available materials. Several wardens who have worn the uniforms during the past year turned in highly favorable reports.

A major consideration by the department in making the change was cost, according to Manuel. The new uniforms will be about half the price of the old, which required custom workmanship and dry cleaning. The new uniforms are washable. Even the cap tops are removable for washing, and the new shirts have sewn-in creases which create a smart appearance with little care required.

The uniforms will standardize the appearance of all department field personnel as they are similar to clothing recently issued to biologists and other employees. The primary difference is in the color, brown.

Another cost-saving advantage, Manuel says, is that the same uniform will be worn year-round.

The new uniforms are of a style common to many enforcement agencies around the country, and are available as stock items. The blue uniforms were of a color shade no longer in fashion and becoming difficult to find on the market.

Wardens were first issued uniforms in the mid-1930's, when the well-dressed officer sported knee breeches, high leather boots and Sam Brown belts. Prior to that, wardens wore their own clothing, being issued only hats and badges.

and raise the company's thermal self-sufficiency to 80%. But the U. S. Customs Service has stated that an import tax of perhaps $7 per year would be levied against the company for the steam, effectively penalizing Fraser for its ingenuity.

The U. S. Trade Representative and the Department of Commerce disagree with Customs decision. To clear up the confusion, last week I introduced legislation to amend the tariff schedules allowing duty-free importation of the steam energy.

The bill can solve Fraser's dilemma while encouraging similar technological advances by other companies.

MAINE MOOSE MAKE
"WILD KINGDOM"—TO BE
TELEVIEWED IN SPRING '83

A program featuring Maine moose will appear on national television next year, according to Fish and Wildlife Commissioner Glenn Manuel.

A segment of Mutual of Omaha's Wild Kingdom series will examine a moose research project in northern Maine, Manuel says.

Producer Don Meier of the Chicago-based company which produces the program said it is expected to be broadcast in the spring of 1983.

A Wild Kingdom production crew spent about two weeks during late June at remote wilderness locations between Ashland and the Allagash Waterway filming the activities of a moose research team.

The moose study is a project of the Maine Cooperative Wildlife Research Unit at the University of Maine at Orono. The unit, headed by Dr. James Sherburne, operates under joint sponsorship of the U. S. Fish and Wildlife Service, UMO and Maine Department of Inland Fisheries and Wildlife.

The film crew photographed the research team using boats to chase swimming moose and lasso them in order to place radio transmitter collars around their necks for future monitoring of their daily activities.

The moose collaring project is now being conducted by Allen Crossley, a graduate student at UMO, assisted by Richard Dyke.

The collared moose are tracked with radio receivers in light aircraft and on the ground in order to learn more about Maine's large herd, second in numbers only to Alaska's.

Sherburne said the filmmakers also photographed "some good behavioral scenes" of moose previously radio-collared, including a cow with two calves collared last year. "This shows that collaring moose not only provides us information on their use of ponds, but also that the collars do not interfere with their normal behavior."

Accompanying the camera crew to Maine to do the on-camera reporting was Jim Fowler, a zoologist who has appeared with the show's star, Martin Perkins, for many years.

According to Meier, Mutual of Omaha's Wild Kingdom is one of the longest running and most widely syndicated programs on television. The show is beginning its 21st season, and is distributed to 240 stations in the U. S. It is also distributed in a number of foreign countries. Over 150 million people see Wild Kingdom each week around the world.
